Calendar Year 2016

Tax-Exempt Income by State

Certain states do not tax mutual fund dividends derived from interest on obligations issued by their state. However, they may tax dividends derived from interest on obligations of other states. The following table shows the percentage of exempt-interest dividends derived from obligations in each state or territory. To determine the amount which may be exempt from state income tax, (1) add together the total amount of income dividends and short-term capital gain dividends you received during 2016 as reported on your account statements; (2) subtract the amount reported in Box 1a of Form 1099-DIV from the amount determined in (1) above; and (3) multiply the result by the percentage shown in the table below for your state or territory.

Income from U.S. Government Securities

During the calendar year, certain RBC Funds invested in securities issued by the United States government or other federal agencies (collectively, "U.S. Government Securities"). Many states do not tax the portion of your Fund's ordinary distributions that comes from U.S. Government Securities. The table below lists the percentage of Fund ordinary distributions that were derived from these U.S. Government Securities.

California, Connecticut and New York require that a mutual fund meet certain minimum investment thresholds in U.S. Government Securities in order for the dividend income derived from these obligations to be exempt from state income tax. None of the Funds listed below met those requirements.

To determine the amount which may be exempt from state income tax:

- (1) For each Fund you owned during 2016, subtract the total amount of short-term capital gain distributions you received during calendar year 2016 (as reported on your account statements) from the amount reported in Box 1a ("Total ordinary dividends") of Form 1099-DIV.
- (2) Multiply the result by the percentage in the table below to calculate the amount of U.S. Government Securities income that may be exempt from your state and local taxes.

Fund Name	Percent of Ordinary Income from U.S. Government Securities
Prime Money Market Fund	0.12%
U.S. Government Money Market Fund	41.45%
RBC Short Duration Fixed Income Fund	0.86%
RBC Ultra-Short Fixed Income Fund	0.30%

If you have questions about distributions please contact your financial advisor or RBC Funds representative at 800.422.2766 weekdays between 8:00am - 4:30pm CST. Please consult a tax advisor regarding your specific situation.
